

As we approach two years since the tragedy at King Soopers, CHF remains steadfast in our work to help all those immediately impacted as they continue to grieve, heal, and look for support.

During the last six months, CHF has continue our work with our partners. The Colorado Organization for Victim Assistance (COVA), as one of our primary partners in covering immediate needs, continues to have funds available to help with any immediate needs that individuals may have. CHF remains diligent in reviewing and revising long-term disbursement plans for funds that have been set aside for support in years to come, utilizing the insight and knowledge from partners on the ground, including the Boulder Police Department Victim Advocates and Boulder District Attorney's Office Victim Advocates. The Boulder Strong Resource Center has been a support for many individuals and CHF continues to support the holistic services provided there.

ACTIVATION OVERVIEW

On March 22, 2021, the Colorado Healing Fund (CHF) activated in response to the mass shooting that occurred at the Table Mesa King Soopers in Boulder, Colorado, also known as the Boulder Supermarket Tragedy. The CHF, in accordance with its mission and guiding protocols, determined the Boulder Supermarket Tragedy fit within the criteria for activation and made this decision public following the press conference held by the Boulder Police Department.

Criteria the CHF Board of Trustees takes into consideration when deciding to activate are the nature and scale of the event, the number of murdered and injured individuals, those directly witnessing or affected by the violent act, the likelihood of adverse community impact, and the potential for exhaustion of currently available resources. Once activated, the CHF officially provides a secure location for the public to donate, while making funds from its general victims fund immediately available to fill gaps in resources. General Protocols are detailed in the Reports section of the CHF website: www.coloradohealingfund.org.

DISBURSEMENT PLANS AND POLICY

Prior to the one year remembrance of the Boulder Supermarket Tragedy, CHF made a distribution of funds, recognizing the mental and emotional impact the one-year mark has on the families and survivors. The Board has retained a smaller portion of all donated funds to address mid and long-term needs as they arise. These plans were developed in the months since the Boulder Supermarket Tragedy and reflect lessons learned from multiple past incidents.

CHF was established to offer support and funding during a criminal case and beyond. Experience shows that birthdays and holidays, as well as three and six-year observances, are known to be triggering events for families of the deceased and survivors of mass violence. The organization will continue to coordinate with the Boulder community to monitor needs and respond in accordance with its mission until all funds have been appropriately disbursed.
